CANCER Answer line

American Cancer Society

A regular feature, prepared by the American Cancer Society, to help save your life from cancer.

A woman asks: "What are the latest reports about drug treatments for breast cancer?"

ANSWERline: Current research shows that drug therapy is a valuable addition to surgery for women who show signs of cancer spread at the time that breast cancer is diagnosed and the stage of the disease has been determined through microscopic examination of tissue samples. This additional use of drugs is showing best results so far in women who develop breast cancer before they undergo menopause. These results include a greatly lowered recurrence rate of breast cancer and a lower death rate among women in this group. The drugs being used include a combination of different drugs (each with a different anti-cancer effect) which is abbreviated as "CMF" and a single drug known as L-PAM. Please note that these drugs have been shown to be useful only for certain breast cancer patients and are not being prescribed for all patients. If you have further questions, speak with your physician or your local American Cancer Society Unit.

A real estate broker explains: "I have twenty people who work for me. I offered a bonus as an incentive to those who stopped smoking. Of the five smokers in my firm, all have quit! Have other employers tried the same thing?"

ANSWERline: Employers have taken a very helpful attitude in aiding workers to stop smoking cigarettes for more than humanitarian reasons. Fewer cigarette smokers mean better office or plant morale, fewer fires and a lesser amount of sick time taken. Many firms allow educational programs about the hazards of cigarette smoking to be held on their premises. Some pay the cost of smoking withdrawal clinics and some actually pay employees to stop smoking on the job. One employer "bet" his workers sums of up to $100 each to get them to end the cigarette habit for one year. Out of 65 contenders for the prize, 25 came out winners in health and wealth!

A coffee shop owner writes: "I serve only fresh orange juice squeezed to order. I was surprised to learn that some oranges are artificially colored. Is this harmful?"

ANSWERline: There is a dye used on the skin of some oranges which is called Citrus Red Number 2. Whether or not this dye has a cancer potential is questioned. However, you should know that the dye does not seep through the skin to the pulp.

Cool Homes Healthier

Those of us who are responding to energy conservation pleas by keeping home temperatures somewhat lower this winter are likely to stay somewhat healthier than those who continue to overheat their dwellings.

The American Medical Association reminds that temperatures in the mid-60s are healthier than temperatures in the mid-70s.

Heating the interior of homes and offices during the winter removes moisture from the air. The higher the temperature, the dryer the air. Air with little moisture aggravates bronchial and other respiratory problems. It contributes to dry throat and nose, coughs, and dry, itchy skin.

The respiratory system doesn't cope well with sudden changes in temperature. Moving from an overly heated room into outside cold affects the body adversely, causing coughs and respiratory problems. The body adjusts to temperature changes gradually.

There are no major health advantages inherent in keeping inside temperature somewhat lower, but there are minor advantages that add to comfort and well being during the winter.

If the air inside your home is very dry even with reduced temperature levels, you might consider using a humidifier to add moisture.

A wise man will make more opportunities than he finds.

I have only just a minute only sixty seconds in it,
Forced upon me - can't refuse it, didn't seek it,
Didn't choose it,
But it's up to me to use it. I must suffer if I lose it,
Give account if I abuse it, Just a tiny little minute but eternity is in it.
